

Most information governance engagements address either the structure or the people. I address both. I design the governance frameworks organisations need and build the human cultures that make those frameworks function under real operational conditions, not just on paper.

WHAT I DO

I sit at the intersection of behavioural science and information governance, a combination that is deliberately rare and practically essential. I help organisations understand that protecting sensitive data is not primarily a technical challenge. It is a human one. And I address it from both sides simultaneously.

SERVICES

Governance-Psychology Audit

A three-dimensional diagnostic examining governance infrastructure, protocol adherence, and psychological climate. Output: a prioritised risk register and intervention roadmap.

Behaviourally Grounded Staff Training

Training designed to build genuine understanding and lasting behaviour change, not a compliance checklist. Grounded in adult learning theory and behavioural economics.

Anonymisation & Information Governance Design

Specialist methodology design, re-identification risk assessment, access authorisation structures, and records lifecycle policy. Built from practitioner experience, not theory.

Executive Advisory & Consulting

Strategic advisory on DPA compliance, evidence-based HR, leadership coaching, and the development of genuine organisational data cultures.
